Celebration, Peacefest get rave reviews

By Jamie Moore
Activities editor

This past weekend gave many Eastern students and Charleston residents a chance to get outside and enjoy the weather as Celebration 2000 and Peacefest went underway.

Celebration 2000, which was held on the Library Quad, featured many food vendors, various ranges of musical entertainment, art vendors and the production of a Medieval sand castle.

Many believed that this was the best Celebration yet.

"They have done a very excellent job this year with Celebration," said Nate Dash, senior environmental biology major. "It's the best thing I've been to in four years."

Others enjoyed the relaxing quality of Celebration.

"I think it is a great activity for Eastern," said Laura Turek sophomore middle school education major.

"It is so much fun to sit in the Quad, enjoy the weather and listen to music. It is a happy and peaceful time," she said.

Community involvement with Celebration was welcomed by many Eastern students.

"It's nice to see so many people from the community and Eastern fraternizing in the lovely weather," said Jeff Young, sophomore music education major.

Peacefest gave students the opportunity to relax,

Local bands raise more than $400 for RSDS foundation

Concert, donation tribute to Eastern student who suffered from syndrome

By Christine Demma
Staff writer

Four local bands came together Friday night to raise money for the Reflex Sympathetic Dystrophy Syndrome foundation in honor of a student who passed away in February.

The show was a tribute to Eric Biesterfeld, a freshman zoology major. Biesterfeld suffered from RSDS.

The Last Resorts, Baked Alaska, Psycho 78 and The Conways performed for the event.

"This tribute is not about us, it's about remembering Eric," said Cal Callahan, the organizer of the event, and a close friend to Mr. Biesterfeld. "I'm very thankful for everyone coming out to this."

The Last Resorts opened the tribute with music from Third Eye Blind, Blink 182 and Weezer, along with a medley and some originals. The band includes Matt Rennels, Ryan Groff, Shane Reichert and Steve Vandever.

"I think that it is wonderful that all Eric's friends pulled together and even those who didn't know him," said Melissa Velon, senior elementary education major.

"Cal put all his heart into this (the show) and did a great job," Velon said.

Baked Alaska took stage next with Al Dertz, Jeff Aranowski, Kevin Farrel and Dan Wagner. The band played their rock and folk music, with a little jazz tied in with their performance.

"I've enjoyed it. I think Cal organized some great bands for a great cause," said Ryan Baxter, sophomore math major.

Psycho '78 continued the show with covers from The Misfits.

Kevin Walker, a member of Psycho '78, said this was the band's third performance since

Freshman found dead in Carman Hall

By Meghan McMahon, Amy Thon
and Nicole Meinheit
Staff editors

A freshman was found dead in an apparent suicide at 7:50 a.m. Sunday in a restroom in Carman Hall.

Dan P. Doyle, 19, of Lockport and a freshman speech communications major, died by hanging, said Coles County Coroner Mike Nichols.

Doyle was pronounced dead when Nichols arrived on the scene at 8:22 a.m.

University officials and members of the EIU Counseling Center staff met with friends and floor-mates of Doyle's Sunday in the Delta Tau Delta fraternity house, where Doyle was a member, and the fourth floor of Carman Hall, where Doyle lived.

Lou Hencken, vice president for student affairs, said group counseling is usually made available the day of the death and additional counseling is available on an individual basis.

"Each one of these is a unique situation," Hencken said.

He said this situation is particularly difficult because it occurred at the end of the semester.

"This is the first death of a student that I can recall coming into finals," Hencken said.

The death is being handled by the Coles County Coroner's Office, the Illinois State Crime Lab and the Eastern Illinois University Police Department.

An autopsy will be performed and an inquest will be held at a later date, Nichols said.

No plans have been made for a memorial service as of Sunday night.

Former state treasurer launches
Gov. Ryan online recall drive

CHICAGO (AP) — Former state treasurer Pat Quinn is taking his brand of grass roots politicking into cyberspace and has chosen Gov. George Ryan as his first target. A new Web site launched Sunday asks for a public vote on Ryan's removal from office, Quinn said. He said he created the site to distribute petitions to put a non-binding advisory on the ballot in the November election and next April's municipal elections. Visitors also can register their opinions about the governor on the Web site. "Ryan has over and over again refused to give answers to questions about his role in the licenses for bribes scandal," Quinn said, referring to the federal investigation into driver's license selling that took place while Ryan was secretary of state. So far, 31 people have been indicted. Ryan has not been charged with wrongdoing. The petition drive, to be financed with seed money from Quinn and the sale of $10 RecallRyan.com buttons, is only advisory. Illinois voters do not have the power to recall or remove elected officials. Quinn hopes the petitions, which must be signed by 10 percent of registered voters in a town or municipality to get on the ballot, will create the political will to push Ryan out of office. A Ryan spokesman called the recall effort a sham. "It's another example of the bad information that you can get on the Internet," Dennis Culloton said Saturday. "It's a cheap political ploy by a gadfly who is obviously looking to get public attention again." Culloton said he has seen the site and said it fails to state clearly that the referendum would only a non-binding advisory vote.

Arkansas preparing for first female execution

VARNER, Ark. (AP) — Arkansas officials are preparing for the first execution of a woman in their state in over 150 years and the fifth nationwide since the death penalty ban was lifted nearly a quarter-century ago. Christina Marie Riggs, 28, is scheduled to die on Tuesday. Like the son she was convicted of killing 2 1/2 years ago, she will be given a lethal injection. Anti-death penalty groups have been fighting to save Riggs — Amnesty International USA on Friday lobbied Gov. Mike Huckabee to grant clemency, and a Huckabee spokesman said the governor is reviewing the case — but Riggs has asked that the execution proceed. Earlier this year, she dropped all appeals. Riggs, a nurse, was convicted of suffocating her 5-year-old son in 1997 after injecting him with potassium chloride at their home in suburban Little Rock. She was also convicted of suffocating her 2-year-old daughter. Prosecutors accused Riggs of killing the children because they kept her from a life she wanted to lead. They said she left the children alone while she competed in karaoke contests and that she had planned their deaths for more than two weeks. Riggs' lawyer had argued she was suffering from depression. Authorities said she injected herself with potassium chloride after killing the children in a failed suicide attempt. On Sunday, Riggs was moved from the three-cell death row at the state women's prison to a cell near the state's execution chamber at the all-male Cummins Unit, prison spokeswoman Dina Tyler said.

forming two months ago. The band consists of Callahan, Walker, Eddy Kasang and Jeremy Wendel. "The show is a good idea," Walker said. "The people are here for someone's life and not just for the music."

To close the show, The Conways played some covers along with some originals, including 2:00 a.m., Alone and With The Rain. The band is made up of Mike Leverage, Dan Novak and Tim Rogner. Leverage said he was glad to see such a good turnout. Phil Feinberg, sophomore computer management major, said, "I think that it is nice to see everyone get together to see the local talent." Alison Mormino, sophomore political science major, said, "A lot of great bands came out for a great cause." The show raised more than $400 to be donated to the RSDS foundation. "The show was a good reason to raise awareness about Eric and his condition," said Julie Ulreich, sophomore special education major.

and socialize with their friends and spread environmental awareness. "It's a good day for everyone to come out and learn something (about the environment)," said Kristi Orlet, president of E.A.R.T.H. and senior art education and art studio major. Recognized Students Organizations ran booths at Peacefest to inform students about their groups and what their groups work for as well as selling merchandise. Peacefest was sponsored by E.A.R.T.H., a group on campus that informs others about the environmental awareness. "We basically promote recycling on campus and inform others about the importance of recycling," said Rachel Baker, senior graphic design major and president elect next year for E.A.R.T.H. Orlet was also pleased with the campus turnout for Peacefest. "We couldn't have asked for a better day," Orlet said. The society of metaphysical advancement had a booth set up at Peacefest to promote their organization and to sell jewelry. We (SOMA) spread the importance of accepting all forms of religion and spiritualities, said Leslie Meyer, senior psychology major. We talk about such things as tarot and dream interpretations, Meyer said. Peacefest featured many bands to help spread the word about environmental awareness. "We're immensely excited about playing at Peacefest," said Ryan Groff, freshman music major and member of The Last Resorts. Many students came out to Peacefest to enjoy the relaxing environment it produced. "Everyone I know is here," said Kelly Lund freshman English secondary education major. "I think the bands are good and it's a comfortable environment to be in." Ryan Navel, sophomore elementary education major, was also enjoying the overall environment of Peacefest. "The dogs are having just as much fun as the people," Navel said.

Police:
Woman
runs down
husband

COVINGTON, La. (AP) — A woman infuriated after her husband looked at another woman during church Sunday tried to run him down with her car three times and succeeded on the final attempt, authorities said. Sedonia Renee Martin, 22, was booked on an attempted murder charge after sheriff's deputies interviewed churchgoers who saw Tushaun Jamel Thompson get hit by the car, said St. Tammany sheriff's spokesman James Hartman. The dispute began when Martin apparently caught her husband looking at another woman during services at St. James Baptist Church. The couple fought when church services ended and while getting into a car. Witnesses told police Thompson left and walked down the street, where Martin tried to hit him twice with the car, Hartman said. Thompson, 24, was treated at a hospital and released.

Athlete winners of Special Olympics receive medals, awards

By Amber Williams
Staff writer

Volunteers and athletes shared laughs, smiles and hugs Friday at the Special Olympics spring games held on Eastern's campus.

Olympians participated in some friendly competition in events such as softball and the long jump. The athletes received medals and awards for participating in events and playing games.

Throughout the day, athletes participated in the track and field events along with others in their own age group. When not participating in athletic events, Olympians could get tattoos, play miniature golf, ring toss or jump in a large bouncing tent.

The Armstrong Center held a rally the day before the Special Olympics, and all of the Olympians were really excited about attending the event, said volunteer Diane Williams.

The athletes cheered on their friends and show their Olympian spirit as they received awards and accolades.

"It is wonderful to be able to see all these people winning awards and having so much fun," Williams said.

Many of the volunteers at the Special Olympics find it personally fulfilling to be able to help other people.

"It is a good feeling to know that we are able to do something for these people," said volunteer Laura Golinowski, recreational administrations major.

Other people's classroom experience came to life during the Special Olympics.

"As a special education major, coming here and helping these people just really clicked for me," said volunteer Heather Schimmel, special education major.

WHEN YOU'RE WAITING FOR A TRANSPLANT, WHAT'S MORE IMPORTANT: YOUR MEDICAL STATUS OR YOUR FINANCIAL STATUS?

Andy Weiss/Norfolk Picture Quest

Contrary to rumors you may have heard, the transplant waiting list is completely blind to wealth or celebrity status. Once you're on the list for a donor organ, what really counts is the severity of your illness, time spent waiting, blood type and other important medical information. Call 1-800-355-SHARE or visit www.shareyourlife.org for honest information on organ donation. And remember, if you want to be a donor, you must tell your family or it may not happen.
